

Sponsorship Opportunities with the Dublin Seminar for New England Folklife, Inc.

For fifty years, the Dublin Seminar has served as a meeting place where scholars of all kinds—academics, students, museum and library professionals, artisans and craftspeople, educators, preservationists, and committed avocational researchers—join in deep conversation around a focused theme in New England history, pooling their knowledge and exchanging ideas, sources, and methods in a thought-provoking forum.

Integral to this exchange of scholarship is a published volume that contains most of the papers delivered at the seminar. Appearing about two years following the program, the Proceedings of the Dublin Seminar for New England Folklife ensure that the research presented remains available to scholars now and in future generations.

Our main partner is our host, Historic Deerfield. Each year we also work with a lead partner—another historic organization specializing in the topic for that year. And we welcome additional sponsors who can help to produce a high-quality program and the subsequent Proceedings volume.
